

Barker Comprehension

Mum left a dish of cold beef on a shelf and Barker jumped up to get it. A carton of milk, a jar of plum jam—Barker knocked them off the shelf to get to the beef.

He looked like a cartoon dog running away from Mum with a big chunk of beef between his teeth.

Mum said, "No, Barker." and Barker just barked.

Oh yes and Mum wasn't too keen on the muddy paw marks. When Barker slept on my bed one night, the sheets had to be washed the next day.

I said "No, Barker." and Barker just barked.

We had a bad day when Barker bit the postman. Barker charged up to him and bit him arm. (He's got sharp teeth, my dog. The postman's still got the scar.)

The postman said, "No, Barker." and Barker just barked.
