The jar of oil

"I will sell it," he said to his yellow dog, pointing at the jar of oil with his stick.

"I will sell it for a jar of gold coins. Think of all the good food I can enjoy when I am a rich man. Oysters, boiled goose, and big joints of lamb.

Hot bread fresh from the grill. Sweet milk puddings and banana jelly.

	1441
gold coins banana jelly Name two types of food the writer will enjoy when he's a rich man. My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her ingers and gold around her neck. Dur garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	. What is th	e writer going to	o sell? Tick (/), the best answer.
Name two types of food the writer will enjoy when he's a rich man. My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her ingers and gold around her neck. Dur garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	a yellow do		jar of oil
My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her ingers and gold around her neck. Our garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	gold coins	_	banana jelly
My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her fingers and gold around her neck. Our garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	. Name two	types of food th	ne writer will enjoy when he's a rich man.
My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her fingers and gold around her neck. Dur garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	l
My princess will have the best embroidered dresses, with splendid rings on her fingers and gold around her neck. Dur garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and	2.
Dur garden will be full of green plants and tall trees. I will grow lemons, and mangoes. And I will appoint a poor man, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, handsome son. His hair will be as black as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will sleep between cool satin sheets in a carved bed, with the softest pillows. B. Finish the sentence to describe the writer's son. His son will have hair as black as midnight and L. Circle two things they will grow in their garden.
His son will have hair as black as midnight and F. Circle two things they will grow in their garden.	fingers and g	old around her n	neck.
	son. His hair	point a poor man, will be as black o	, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, hands as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will s	some Apples Lemons Bananas Strawberries Mangoes	son. His hair between cool 3. Finish the	point a poor man, will be as black of satin sheets in a	, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, hands as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will s a carved bed, with the softest pillows. scribe the writer's son.	some
	son. His hair between coo 3. Finish the His son wil	point a poor man, will be as black of satin sheets in a sentence to des	, to do all the odd jobs. We will have a strong, hands as midnight, and his lips as red as a sunset. He will s a carved bed, with the softest pillows. Scribe the writer's son. ack as midnight and	some